

The Lesser Light

The lesser light to rule the night no sorrow may there be at journey's end
A message sent by candlelight.
The sad communication from a friend
We are so lonely here, it says, you are so far from home and we are afraid
You'll never cease to roam
I write my answers slowly but I know that they are right ...again

The lesser light is shining bright, the stars a thorny sweep across the sky A scudding cloud of misty night. I'll follow my thoughts to it by and by I'll hold my cup of kindness then until it overflows
and then I'm away I'll follow where it goes A sullen trickle through the grass that shows where all the subtle flowers grow

Musical bridge (optional)

A strong path, a stony path, some old forgotten shoes along the way I slip them both upon my feet. Perhaps I'll find the owner and I'll say
"I've walked a trail of fairy dust but I don't know where it ends." "Could it be?
It's just around the bend?"
"I'll leave you with a note from me. Please let them know where I have been"

Moon shines overhead and all around us puddled bright Oh, it falls, into the wood a silver darkness of delight

The lesser light to rule the night no sorrow may
A message sent by candlelight. The sad communication from a friend
We are so lonely here, it says, you are so far
home and we are afraid

Oh, Look for me, search for me and you will find me - here at home
